Exclusive Tresserra pool table

One of the most outstanding pieces in the showroom of celebrated Catalan designer Jaime Tresserra, on rue de Rivoli, is his elegant and thoroughly contemporary take on pools – a great, if a little neglected game more associated with professional clubs and fusty pool halls than luxury furniture designers. Bolero (even the name has something of the thrill you get at the start of a game!) is an imposing piece with the sort of distinctive features we've come to expect from Tresserra – precious wood (Ceylon lemon wood), luxurious materials (beige Vaquetilla leather) and a myriad of tiny details, which make this pool table so unique, including a 30mm-thick slate playing surface, stainless steel hinges, and discreet integrated LED strips and belt.

Endowed with solid, rectangular legs, also in lemon wood, its combination of beige and caramel details gives the design an extremely soft and sensual feel. The six pockets of this exceptional pool table are delicately edged in leather and wood, while the balls are stored away in a leather tray. A game of precision, without the slightest fault, the Bolero is the ultimate expression of Tresserra's expertise, and comes with a stainless steel ceiling lamp and a wall cue holder, also in Ceylon lemon wood. Available in darker wood versions with different colored cloths, it's the perfect example of Tresserra's ability to make unique and customizable furniture. This pool table is ideal for even the most upscale interiors and blends in with a range of styles. A perfect combination of elegance and precision, it has brought a venerable game into the 21st century. ■
